

RESILIENCE WITHIN

A SHORT GUIDE TO RESILIENCE FOR NGOs

Understand what it means to be resilient, reflect on your NGO's resilience, and take steps to improve it

NGOs ARE CRUCIAL TO SOCIETY, SUPPORTING THOSE MOST IN NEED. BUT YOU CAN'T HELP OTHERS UNLESS YOU CAN HELP YOURSELF.

This short guide will help you understand what it means to be resilient, reflect on your NGO's resilience, and take steps to improve it.

Becoming resilient

LEARN about resilience	4-5
EVALUATE your NGO's resilience	7
MAKE time	11
LEAD from the front	12
ENGAGE your staff	13
CONNECT with your community	14
BECOME change-ready	15
MORE about resilience	16
FIND further support	17

What is resilience? (It's more than you might think!)

Resilience is not just surviving, but also thriving in an uncertain environment.

Resilient NGOs can be counted on by their clients to continue providing their core services during times of adversity. They also have the foresight to avoid some potential crises and the abilities to learn and capitalize on opportunities for improvement.

Organisational resilience is both planning to manage the unexpected, as well as adapting and reacting to changing circumstances.

A resilient organisation has the following characteristics:

- Leadership and culture: Strong, aware, and empathetic leadership combined with staff that are empowered, trust each other, and are well looked after.
- Networks: Effective external partnerships, well-managed internal resources, and the ability to leverage knowledge across the organisation.
- Change-Readiness: A unity of purpose and a proactive posture combined with the regular testing of plans to counter vulnerabilities.

DO YOU HAVE THESE ATTRIBUTES?

Why resilience?

NGOs encounter both threats and opportunities on a regular basis.

- funding cuts
- natural disasters
- newly available resources

Are you ready for them?

Many people rely on NGOs for crucial services they cannot get anywhere else. If your NGO isn't resilient, you're putting the services it provides at risk and in turn the clients you serve.

The traits of resilience are very similar to those of high performing organisations. There's nothing to lose from building resilience, but there's everything to gain.

BE RESPONSIBLE.
BE SMART.
BE RESILIENT.

ORGANISATIONS AREN'T BORN
RESILIENT. RESILIENCE IS BUILT OVER TIME THROUGH REFLECTION AND DELIBERATE EFFORT.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE TO START.

Remember

Small actions can reap

BIG REWARDS

Thumbprint survey

To find out whether your organisation is resilient or not, you need to take a step back and reflect critically about the way you operate.

Here's a quick survey to help you start this process and get the ball rolling. It has a range of questions that relate to the different aspects of organisational resilience. This can be done electronically if you prefer – see <http://resorgs.resilientbusiness.co.nz/>

For each question score your NGO between 0 (completely disagree), and 7 (completely agree). The greater your final score, the greater your resilience.

It's useful to involve a range of people in this process to get a diversity of perspectives. Photocopy the next two pages so your staff can complete the survey too, then discuss the results together.

Thumbprint survey

For each question score your NGO between 0 (completely disagree), and 7 (completely agree). The greater your final score, the greater your resilience.

	Strongly Disagree					Strongly Agree
1. There would be good leadership from within our organisation if we were struck by a crisis	<input type="checkbox"/>
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
2. People in our organisation are committed to working on a problem until it is resolved	<input type="checkbox"/>
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
3. We proactively monitor our industry to have an early warning of emerging issues	<input type="checkbox"/>
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
4. We can make tough decisions quickly	<input type="checkbox"/>
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
5. We are known for our ability to use knowledge in novel ways	<input type="checkbox"/>
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
6. We build relationships with others we might have to work with in a crisis	<input type="checkbox"/>
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
7. If key people were unavailable, there are always others who could fill their role	<input type="checkbox"/>
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
8. There are few barriers stopping us from working well with other organisations	<input type="checkbox"/>
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
9. Our organisation maintains sufficient resources to absorb unexpected change	<input type="checkbox"/>
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7

10. We have clearly defined priorities for what is important during and after a crisis
11. We have a focus on being able to respond to the unexpected
12. Given our level of importance, I believe the way we plan for the unexpected is appropriate
13. We believe emergency plans must be practised and tested to be effective

Strongly Disagree					Strongly Agree
<input type="checkbox"/>
0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
<input type="checkbox"/>
0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
<input type="checkbox"/>
0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
<input type="checkbox"/>
0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7

TOTAL

How did you go? Add up your total score to get an idea of how resilient your organisation might be.

0 – 55: Low resilience: Your organisation likely has serious vulnerabilities. Look at ways to address and develop resilience immediately. On which two questions did you score the lowest – make these a priority.

56 – 67: Medium resilience: Your organisation likely has some resilience, but should still prioritize building upon and expanding this.

68 – 91: High resilience: Your organisation shows signs of being resilient. It's time to look more closely to identify weak-spots and ensure your resilience is sustainable. On which two questions did you score the highest? Think about why you scored high on these and how you could apply that to improve other areas.

RESILIENCE IS A JOURNEY, NOT A DESTINATION.

The environment we live and work in is constantly changing, so resilience is an ongoing process of learning and improvement. It's important to make being resilient part of your business-as-usual, not something extra you tack on.

The next couple of pages have some tangible ideas to help you do just this. Building resilience is both achievable and affordable.

- Make the time
- Lead from the front
- Engage your staff
- Become change ready
- Find supportConnect with Others

Make the time

To become more RESILIENT, you have to first make time to work on your NGO, not just in it.

You probably feel that you just don't have the time to work on resilience, but how are you spending your time?

It's easy to get caught up spending all your time on the day-to-day work of your NGO, but it's essential for leaders to step back and look at the bigger picture too. If you don't, then who will?

There's more to leadership than just managing and administrating. Try setting aside 30% of your time to work on:

1. planning and strategy
2. looking after your staff
3. improving your services

This might require delegating some of your other work, which can seem scary, but it's necessary to free up your time and also a great way to empower your staff with more responsibility.

Making time is often the hardest part of building resilience. You're unlikely be able to address every single issue, but even making 2 or 3 changes to boost your resilience makes a difference and your clients will thank you for it.

Lead from the front

PLAN WHERE YOUR NGO IS GOING.

What's happening next week? Next month? Next year? Set aside a couple hours each week to make planning part of your 'business as usual'. It saves time and money in the long run and ensures your NGO stays on the right track. Involve your staff; try having a 1-2 hour planning session with your team once a month.

DEVELOP YOUR LEADERSHIP SKILLS.

The better leader you are, the better your NGO can fulfill its mission and handle adversity.

Ask around to find a mentor, join a group like Rotary or Toastmasters, or enroll in a leadership development course.

PROMOTE YOUR ORGANISATION'S VISION AND MISSION.

If bought into, they can act as vital touchstones that focus your work and rally your team during times of adversity. Your team follows your lead, so create a positive work culture around these by visibly modeling the behaviour you're looking for.

Remember...

FAILING TO PLAN IS PLANNING TO FAIL!

A GOOD LEADER
ALWAYS TRYs
TO IMPROVE THEMSELVES AND THEIR STAFF.

YOU'RE A CULTURE-SETTER

Engage your staff

FOSTER GOOD RELATIONSHIPS AND REGULAR COMMUNICATION AMONGST STAFF.

Your NGO will be better prepared to handle adversity and share learnings and good practices. Try organizing a social event for staff to get to know each other outside of the workplace.

EMPOWER YOUR STAFF so they feel valued and see your NGO as more than just where they go to work. This is especially important if you work with volunteers. Actively recognize and reward hard work, and, where possible, involve staff in decision-making processes.

SUPPORT YOUR STAFF AND TREAT THEM AS INDIVIDUALS. Let them work autonomously, but if something goes wrong, professionally or personally, they must be supported.

A resilient NGO needs resilient staff, and a supportive workplace goes a long way to achieving this.

Remember...

MAKE IT PERSONAL!

RECOGNISE AND REWARD.

A RESILIENT NGO NEEDS RESILIENT
STAFF.

Connect with your community

BUILD YOUR NETWORKS. Positive relationships with other organisations in your sector and community can provide valuable support during crises. They can also be great sources for inspiration and new ideas. Paying a visit to your local volunteer center or NGO network is a great way to get started.

COLLABORATE WITH RELEVANT PARTNERS. From simply sharing resources on occasion to a full-fledged partnership, there's a range of ways organisations can achieve more with less through cooperation. When the chips are down during a crisis, those who work together tend to come out better off.

UPDATE YOURSELF ON THE LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN YOUR SECTOR. Having an external focus is important for being a resilient organisation. By regularly looking out into your broader operating environment for threats and opportunities you'll be giving your NGO the best chance to adapt, change, and succeed in our uncertain world.

Remember...

DON'T GET STUCK IN YOUR BUBBLE

TWO HEADS ARE BETTER THAN ONE

KEEP AN EYE OUT!

Become change-ready

ENSURE YOUR CORE SERVICES by planning alternate ways to deliver them and backing up key resources where possible. Cross-train staff so they could fill in if others become unavailable, and check to see that you're properly insured.

TALK ABOUT RESILIENCE with your staff. It will help you get more ideas for building resilience and is a great way to engage your staff. Try discussing resilience over morning tea once a week. Ask staff "what's going to stop us doing our job, and what could we do about it?"

TEST BOTH YOUR FORMAL PLANS AND ADAPTIVE RESILIENCE REGULARLY. Rehearse plans or drills but also try creative scenarios such as operating for a day without your landline or your computer. This not only prepares you for such situations but also encourages innovation and creative problem solving.

Tips...

MAKE SURE ALL YOUR BOXES ARE TICKED! ✓

MAKE RESILIENCE
A WEEKLY
PRIORITY. 📅

TRY GETTING CREATIVE WITH YOUR TEST
SCENARIOS ⚡

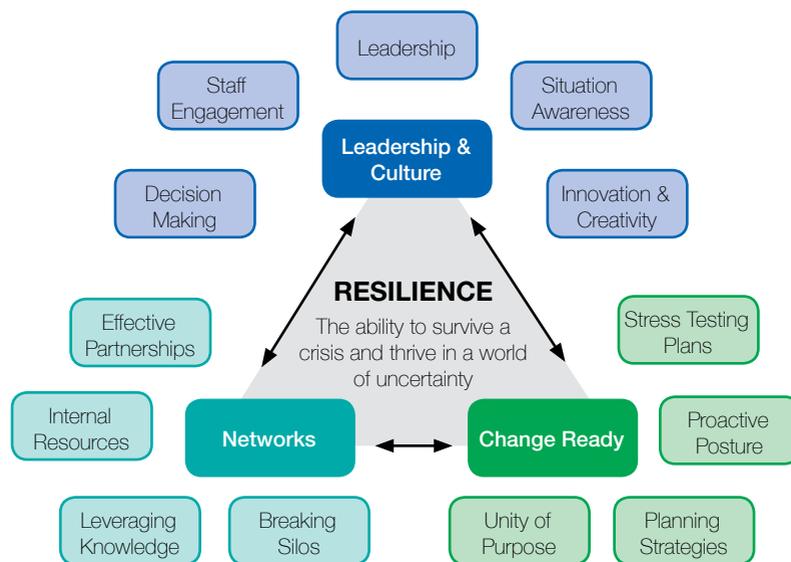

~~UNPREPARED~~

MORE about Resilience

What is it that makes some organisations able to not only survive, but also to thrive in the face of adversity?

RESILIENCE INDICATORS

For further info: www.resorgs.org.nz/Content/what-is-organisational-resilience.html

Find further support

MORE ON ORGANISATIONAL RESILIENCE

www.resorgs.org.nz

www.resilientbusiness.co.nz

CHARITY AND VOLUNTARY ORGANISATION SUPPORT

www.charities.govt.nz/strengthening-your-charity

www.volunteeringnz.org.nz

www.msd.govt.nz/about-msd-and-our-work/work-programmes/investing-in-services-for-outcomes/organisational-capability-self-assessment-tool.html

NGO NETWORKING

www.angoa.org.nz

www.volunteeringnz.org.nz/contact-vnz/regional-volunteer-centres

CRISIS MANAGEMENT

www.wheaton.edu/HDI

<http://toolkit.smallbiz.nsw.gov.au/chapter/18/92>

LEADERSHIP

www.toastmasters.org.nz

www.rotary.org.nz

http://soar.ucsc.edu/forms/developing_leadership.pdf

www.sideroad.com/Leadership/index.html

Most services set up for business are also more than happy to help NGOs. Pay a visit to your local chamber of commerce or business network as they can offer fantastic support.

This guide was developed by Resilient Organisations – a public good research programme based in New Zealand. We have been researching what makes organisations resilient to crises since 2004.

Resilient Organisations is a collaboration between top New Zealand research universities, particularly the University of Canterbury and University of Auckland. We are funded by the Natural Hazards Platform and supported by a diverse group of industry partners and advisors. We are a multi-disciplinary team of over 20 researchers, representing a synthesis of engineering, science and business leadership aimed at transforming organisations into those that both survive major events and thrive in the aftermath.

See www.resorgs.org.nz for further information